NATIONAL POLICE SERVICE

"Service with Dignity"

Strategic Plan

2013/14 - 2017/18

Foreword

It is with great pleasure that I release this strategic plan which will deliver the continued police reforms and transformation of the National Police Service.

The plan articulates strategies that are being deployed over five (5) years towards a holistic transformation of the Service. In particular, it will strengthen the establishment of various institutions like Internal Affairs Unit, County Policing Authorities and Community Policing Committees as service delivery organs.

Other areas of the strategy include provision of leadership and command to realise harmonisation of component Services, specifically Kenya Police and Administration Police. This will be achieved through collaboration and development of common programmes like training, use of standardised Service Standing Orders, and other administrative systems and approaches.

To ensure a sustained reform agenda articulated in reform legislation, the reforms proposed in legislation and by various stakeholders will be implemented over the next five years. A Reforms Directorate will be established, which will link with reform champions across the Services. The reforms will focus primarily on the policing style, service delivery, modernisation of facilities and use of technology as a thrust to modern policing.

This plan proposes establishment of strategic linkages with diverse stakeholders locally and internationally. NPS will target to benchmark and learn from the best police services in the world. This will ensure that NPS builds momentum towards achieving her grand vision of becoming; "A World-class Police Service."

The plan envisages strengthening of the institutional capacity that encompasses extensive training of officers, creating a conducive working environment and implementing a performance and quality management system. This is coupled with increased automation and extensive utilization of ICT in policing which will require the networking of all stations and offices, enhanced communications and use of CCTV and other ICT solutions

Certainly, the plan requires increased annual budgets to ensure consistent implementation. While the Government has made significant effort in resource allocation, I also expect that County governments, development partners, business sponsors and public will support the Service using appropriate platforms.

Finally, Community Policing as a philosophy and crime prevention strategy will be implemented across the entire country. It is a proven model of policing that ensures sensitivity to local conditions and promotes citizen participation. Communities will be encouraged to work with the police in enhancing their own security as envisaged in the Constitution. County Policing Authorities are charged with the responsibility of implementing Community Policing in their Counties. NPS will work with Governors in operationalising CPAs and ensure effective delivery of service at the community level.

I invite all the stakeholders to join NPS in fulfilling her Mission, which is, "To provide professional police service through community partnership and upholding rule of law for a safe and secure society."

Thank you.

The development of this Strategic Plan was a consultative process that involved members of the Service drawn from Kenya Police Service (KPS), Administration Police Service (APS) and Directorate of Criminal Investigation (DCI). The initial team spent time thinking through the process of developing the Strategic plan leading to formulation of vision and mission statements.

Later the team undertook an intensive planning workshop during which the provisions were articulated. Further engagement with senior officers ensured that the provisions were in tandem with the intended changes and reforms in the Service. In this regard, I wish to thank all the Officers who were involved in the drafting and development of this Plan. Although their names may not be listed in full, their contribution is invaluable.

In particular, I wish to thank my predecessor Mr. David Kimaiyo who oversaw the development of this plan. I am also grateful to UNODC for providing financial and technical support during the development of this plan. I thank the Chief of Staff, Mr William Thwere for coordinating the process of this strategic plan development and also appreciate the services of Dr Eliud Nthiga, the Strategic Management Consultant who worked with the team from inception to completion of this plan.

I am most grateful to the team for providing guidance throughout the planning period and ensuring that the provisions in this plan are in tandem with legal provisions, aspirations of the Service and the general public.

Finally, I wish to acknowledge and thank all the stakeholders who also contributed to the plan during the validation workshop. This includes civil society organisations and members of public. I thank you all.

Introduction

Vision 2030 reiterates this commitment;

“The government will expand, equip and modernize the security agencies to ensure that every Kenyan is assured of their safety and their property...The pay and conditions of service for security personnel will also be improved. Measures will be put in place to support community policing and invest in new technology such as CCTV to improve security.”

1.1 Background

Security is critical in achieving and sustaining the economic growth that is envisaged under Vision 2030, with the Government committed to creating a society free of fear and danger. A secure Kenyan environment provides a key incentive for attracting investments both from within and without in order to stimulate economic growth in the country.

To achieve the above, the Government has undertaken to support the transformation of the National Police Service (NPS) into a vibrant and modern organisation that is highly trained, professional and resourced to address 21st century policing challenges. The functions of the NPS will be underpinned by a commitment to the fundamentals of human rights and freedoms, gender concerns and promotion of positive relations with the broader society all cited under the Constitution of Kenya 2010.

Vision 2030 reiterates this commitment;

“The government will expand, equip and modernize the security agencies to ensure that every Kenyan is assured of their safety and their property... The pay and conditions of service for security personnel will also be improved. Measures will be put in place to support community policing and invest in new technology such as CCTV to improve security.”

With the establishment of the National Police Service as one of the institutions of the larger police reform process, the development of this strategic plan sets the stage for a prioritised agenda that will accelerate the highly anticipated police reforms.

Inspector General Mr. Joseph Boinnet being sworn into office

As a priority, this plan will focus on the establishment of an Internal Affairs Unit (IAU) to increase police accountability; establishment of County Policing Authorities as a move towards the devolution of policing responsibility to the County in support of the two tier government; vetting of police officers to validate and ensure their suitability and competence; comprehensive rollout of community policing as a national policing philosophy and the operational and institutional strengthening of the police service in general.

The process of operational and institutional strengthening and reform will require political and community goodwill, inspirational and collaborative leadership, commitment by all officers and appropriate allocation of resources. This plan articulates how the implementation will be carried out through leading to the realization Vision and Mission of NPS.

1.2 Mandate of National Police Service

The National Police Service Act, 2011, and the Constitution of Kenya recognizes the significant role security agencies play in promoting public safety, law and order.

According to the National Police Service Act, 2011, Part III (24, 27 and 35) the National Police Service is mandated to primarily undertake the following functions:

- Protection of life and property;
- Provision of assistance to the public when in need;
- Maintenance of law and order;
- Preservation of peace;
- Prevention and detection of crime;
- Apprehension of offenders;
- Investigation of crimes;
- Collection of criminal intelligence;
- Conduct forensic analysis;
- Maintenance of Criminal Records;
- Receiving and investigating complaints;
- Provision of border patrol and border security;
- Provision of specialized stock theft prevention services;
- Protection of government property, vital installations and strategic points;
- Coordinating with complementing government agencies in conflict management and peace building;
- Rendering of support to government agencies in the enforcement of administrative functions and the exercise of lawful duties;
- Fostering relationships with international police agencies;
- Enforcement of all laws and regulations with which it is charged; and
- Performance of any other duties that may be prescribed by the Inspector General or any other written law from time to time.

1.3 Rationale for the Strategic Plan

This strategic plan serves as a link between the national government aspirations for development as articulated in the Kenya Vision 2030 blue print, and the necessity for security, without which there can be no meaningful development. The government has identified security as one of its key priorities. The social pillar of Vision 2030 specifically seeks to achieve a “just and cohesive society.”

Under the political pillar for Vision 2030 development Blue Print, Kenya aims at institutionalizing a framework that promotes a fair, affordable and equitable access to justice. In this regard, the National Police Service together with other players are expected to put in place specific strategies involving the alignment of the national policy and a legal framework, which meets the needs of a market-based economy, human rights and gender equity, as well as play a critical role in the promotion of the rule of law.

This Strategic Plan, which covers the period 2013 – 2018, provides a road map for NPS to provide a safe and secure environment for all, and articulates strategies for realising the vision of becoming a “World Class Police Service”.

The plan outlines activities geared towards transforming the service. The integration process between the Kenya Police and the Administration Police provides an opportunity to develop a common purpose and agenda, which this strategic plan is intended to achieve.

To ensure effective implementation of community policing, the plan seeks to engage all police officers across the ranks to partner with the communities in operationalizing the Community Policing policy.

With activities set out in a prioritised sense, there is opportunity for sequenced gradual modernization of the Service within the planned period. However, the current state of the Service creates a negative impression due to low resourcing of the Service which may lead to delayed modernization, poor service delivery and in-effective management of security as desired by the citizenry.

This plan therefore takes cognizance of the needs and expectations of the police and other stakeholders. It also takes cognizance of the challenging environment under which the Service performs its roles and puts to consideration strengths, weakness, opportunities and threats facing the Service. Fundamentally, this strategic plan is designed to meet the demands and expectations of a Service that is people centred and ensures a secure Kenya.

1.4 Development of 2013-2018 Strategic Plan

The process of development of this strategic plan was all inclusive and ensured participation of all stakeholders, both internal and external. The process was preceded by several meetings by officers at the Inspector General's Offices where proposals for vision, mission and core values were received in preparation for the planning workshop. Inspector General's perspectives of the NPS were also received.

A strategic planning workshop was held where officers deliberated on the strategic objectives and how they were to be implemented. From them were derived primary activities, outputs, indicators and generally the implementation matrix. A structure for implementing the plan and resource mobilisation strategies was determined. This was done in conformity to guidelines provided by Ministry of Planning and Devolution.

Further consultations were carried out and views from stakeholders including heads of the three Police Units, Ministry officials, development partners and civil society incorporated. The process culminated in a validation workshop where the plan was adopted. This participatory process was critical in ensuring that the public, as well as Government and officers of all ranks had their views articulated and incorporated to ensure ownership of this Strategic plan.

Institutional Analysis

“Security is a key incentive for attracting investment as it provides an enabling environment for individuals and businesses to thrive. The economic growth and development anticipated in Kenya cannot be achieved and sustained without a peaceful, stable and secure environment. Security sector envisions a society free from danger and fear by 2030. It aims at guaranteeing every person in Kenya freedom from danger and freedom from fear.”

2.0 Institutional Analysis

The National Police Service is established as a Service under national government to provide security service to all Kenyans. It is traditionally known that the core functions of police are maintenance of law and order, protection of life and property, prevention and detection of crime, apprehension of offenders and preservation of peace. These provisions are variously articulated in several instruments namely; the Constitution of Kenya 2010, National Police Service Act 2011. Vision 2030 (MTP II 2013-2017), The National Government Coordination Act 2013 and other relevant documents.

2.1 The Constitution

Article 244 of the constitution provides principles that the NPS must adhere to and comply with. They are categorised into two: First, adherence to constitutional standards of human rights and fundamental freedoms and second training staff to the highest possible standard of competence and integrity.

Specifically, NPS will:

- strive for the highest standards of professionalism and discipline among its members;
- prevent corruption and promote and practice transparency and accountability;
- comply with constitutional standards of human rights and fundamental freedoms;
- train staff to the highest possible standards of competence and integrity and to respect human rights and fundamental freedoms and dignity; and
- foster and promote relationships with the broader society.

2.2 Vision 2030

Vision 2030 has identified Security as a major area of focus. It takes cognizance thus:

“Security is a key incentive for attracting investment as it provides an enabling environment for individuals and businesses to thrive. The economic growth and development anticipated in Kenya cannot be achieved and sustained without a peaceful, stable and secure environment. Security sector envisions a society free from danger and fear by 2030. It aims at guaranteeing every person in Kenya freedom from danger and freedom from fear.”

During the first MTP 2008-12, the security sector endeavored to address issues of national security. Special emphasis was placed on security reforms aimed at enhancing the capacity of the State to protect its citizens and property from both internal and external threats. These reforms included modernizing security infrastructure, enhancing policing, transforming penal facilities into correctional institutions, improving security officers’ welfare, refocusing policing to be more intelligence-led, enhancing surveillance by incorporating CCTVs, and integrating vital data needed for effective security management.

The major achievements under the first MTP 2008-12 was estimated at 60% implementation of the six flagship projects namely: forensic laboratory; Installation of surveillance cameras in Nairobi, Mombasa, Nakuru and Kisumu; Police reforms programme including police housing project; establishment of a national security database; establishment of an Integrated Population Registration System (IPRS), and Procurement of e-visa / border management system.

2.3 National Police Legislative Framework

After enactment of the Constitution, it was envisaged that relevant legislation would be put in place to give full effect to the provisions thereof.

Three institutions were created to ensure Police reforms; The National Police Service Commission (vide NPSC Act 2011); National Police Service (vide NPS Act 2011) and Independent Police Oversight Authority (IPOA Act 2011).

The clamour for comprehensive reforms were ignited around 2008 after the post election violence and drafting of "Agenda Four." The three Acts have made provisions that are guiding the reform agenda for the Police.

2.4 Strategic Implications of National Police Service Act, 2011

There are several implications emanating from the NPS Act that will define NPS. While a detailed discourse may not be necessary in this strategic plan, it is important to highlight some of the issues since they affect the way the Service will be shaped. These include;

- Determination of Ranks harmonized across the two main Services (section 4:2).
- Transfer of all officers and staff (civilian) immediately preceding the Act to Officers and employees of the NPS (Section 7).
- The empowerment of Inspector General and his core functions (section 8-11).
- Functions of the two Services and DCI (Section 22-35).
- Establishment of County Policing Authorities (section 40-44).
- Formation of Police Officers Associations (section 82-86).
- Formation of Internal Affairs Unit for increased police accountability and discipline (section 87-95).
- Operationalisation of Community Policing as a philosophy (section 96-100).
- Reciprocity arrangements (section 107-109).
- Operationalisation of National Police Reserve (section 110-115).
- Issuance of Service Standing Orders (section 10 and 131).
- Establishment of a Police Reforms platforms (section 126; 132)

2.4.1 Reorganization of KPS, APS & DCI

The absorption of the staff and the rationalizing of ranks will demand extensive analysis of jobs, placements and review of structures across the Services. This activity will address duplication of efforts and deployments, thereby strengthening, utilization of the Human Resource capacity and rationalization of functions within NPS.

Vetting of Officers to ascertain competence and suitability in order to give the Service a new image and credibility, will be undertaken. Harmonizing the Services and addressing the challenges of cultural differences and resistance will be achieved by the development of programmes to improve attitudes and promote cooperation and collaboration.

Issuance of Service Standing Orders will mark a major strategic shift aimed at harmonizing and standardizing policing practice across the Services.

Whilst functions and roles of each Service are described in the relevant Sections of NPS Act 2011 and their distinctive roles outlined, the main focus will be harmonising of activities in support of the NPS mandate.

2.4.2 Establishment of County Policing Authorities

The National Police Service Act, 2011, section 41 establishes County Policing Authorities in all 47 Counties. Consequently, the Inspector General has deployed County Commanders in the Counties to maintain law and order. In line with the Act and to achieve this effectively the County Commanders will be members of the County Policing Authority. The Governor or a member of the County Executive Committee appointed by the Governor shall be the chairperson of the CPAs.

The County Policing Authority will be instrumental in the provision of security in the Counties. Its functions as outlined in section (41) (9) of the National Police Service Act, 2011 include; development of proposals and prioritized plans for crime prevention; promoting of Community Policing, monitoring progress of crime prevention and targets, facilitating community participation, provision of financial oversight and reporting on crimes.

“The County Policing Authority shall prepare, publicize and submit quarterly reports to the Inspector-General, Cabinet Secretary, County Assembly and Governor regarding accounting for the status and progress on each of the functions with which it is charged and the impediments to the performance of those functions.”

2.4.3 Service Delivery at Station Level

Police Stations are the “window shop” to the National Police Service. It is at this point that the vast majority of the citizens access the services provided by the Service.

It is at the police stations where Services are expected to plan and work together. They will collect and keep police records, register the victims of crime and violence, have facility to deal with complaints against police misconduct, and maintain appropriate lock-up facilities.

To make police stations effective centres of service delivery, there will be need for modernization of stations. That will include automation of records, use of ICT, expansion and standardization of physical structures. There is also need to refurbish the Stations and equip them adequately.

2.4.4 Crime management

Over the last five years crime in the country has been on the increase. Serious crimes have been escalating at the rate of between 3% and 4%. Serious crimes most regularly registered in many parts of the country are robberies, murders and sexual offences. However, the most serious threat to National Security remains terrorism and other forms of organised crime.

Kenya has been exposed to various crime threats emanating from actions of unemployed youth, illegal refugees, infiltration by bordering communities due to porous borders, easy access to illicit firearms and more recently terrorism, organised crime, radicalization of youth along religious lines and separatist tendencies.

The Police and government have emphasized the importance of collaboration in fighting crime. It requires the combined efforts of all stakeholders, eg Courts (as part of Criminal Justice System), CSOs and Citizenry, hence the essence of the establishment of a robust community policing system. Lack of modern and adequate facilities, metamorphosis and sophistication of crime have contributed to the challenge of fighting it.

However, the 2012/2013 Annual Report on Crime Statistics indicated a significant decrease of crimes especially after the March 2013 General Elections.

The table below illustrates the crime trends for 6 years;

Year/ Category of Crime	2007	2008	2009	2010	2011	2012
Murder	1402	1822	1711	1613	1662	1733
Robbery with Violence	3771	2251	1735	1776	1787	2429
Carjacking	43	20	67	31	33	19
Dangerous Drugs	5036	3926	3698	3756	3815	3115
Sexual Offences (Rape & Defilement)	3044	2650	3416	3825	3682	3629
Economic Crimes	1311	1143	1427	1520	1475	1471

Source: Annual Kenya Police Service Statistics, 2012

Crime management will be a major priority concern during the period of this plan. Research carried out by independent bodies indicated Kenyans are keen on reforms only if they are geared towards ensuring their security. Therefore, participation of the citizenry and other stakeholders through community policing efforts is essential.

2.4.5 Community Policing

Community Policing is an internationally recognized method for ensuring safer neighbourhoods by engaging communities to contribute to their safety and security. Community Policing is both a philosophy (a way of thinking) and an organisational strategy (a way to carry out the philosophy) that allows the police and the community to work together using innovative ways to solve problems of crime, disorder and safety among other issues that improve the quality of life for everyone in that community.

The approach has been tried out for a couple of years with significant success in some areas like Kikuyu and Lari in Kiambu County, however in some areas it has not worked as well. There will be deliberate effort to ensure models are created that will address specific needs in each County.

The responsibility for implementing community policing is the County government under the County Policing Authorities but coordinated by NPS with Police Stations providing the operational base.

A National Policy on Community Policing has been developed. The policy addresses the legal and institutional framework and provides broad and specific guidelines for effective implementation of Community policing.

2.4.6 Establishment of Internal Affairs Unit

One of the major reforms achieved under the police reform agenda was the establishment of an Internal Affairs Unit (IAU). Its key roles are to receive and investigate complaints against the police, promote uniform standards of discipline and good order in the Service, and keep a record of the facts of any complaints or investigations made together with results and disciplinary findings. A key facet of their role is to work towards increasing levels of public trust and confidence in the Service, and its willingness and ability to deal with errant officers in a robust, transparent and ethical manner.

A major requirement will be the devolution and replication of the Unit functions in all Counties and a coordination of complaints recording at the Police Station level. There is a requirement that the Units be located in separate offices from the rest of the Service. This will create a demand for more offices and automation of the same..

The IAU will work in close collaboration with oversight agencies such as IPOA, The National Police Service Commission and other relevant stakeholders.

2.4.7 Modernization of NPS

As mentioned earlier the government has put effort in modernizing the Security and policing sector with focus on;

- Improving security infrastructure,
- Making best use of modern technology in investigations,
- policing and surveillance using an integrated approach;
- public education;
- improvement of police officer welfare (both housing and pay);
- installation of new and improvement of existing ICT;
- increasing focus on the citizen and community policing; and
- Enhancement of research capacity in crime control.

2.4.8 Cross cutting concerns in the Service

Vetting of all Police Officers

This exercise started in earnest and has continued with senior and middle level Officers vetted to determine their competence and suitability to serve in the NPS. Conducted independently by the NPSC, the objective is to identify and address cases of impropriety and incompetence which give police a bad image and loss of confidence by the public. Vetting is a major aspect of police reforms.

Establishment of welfare organisations

The NPS Act has stipulated the need to establish staff organisations aimed at improvement of welfare and as channels for articulating special concerns like gender. The Act provides freedom for officers to belong to other professional organisations. It is expected that such organizations will be formed.

Human Rights based policing

Human Rights are clearly articulated in the Constitution and the NPS Act. It is a fundamental requirement that NPS cooperates in development of HR mainstreaming strategies that ensures officers adhere to the highest level of responsibility in observing human rights particularly in the use of firearms and arrests. This plan envisages collaborative working relationship with Human Rights Bodies to bring about behaviour change that is desired.

Gender Mainstreaming

The Constitution requires that in all public institutions, one third of its staff be of opposite gender. The NPS is historically skewed towards male gender among uniformed officers. While this is expected to be corrected over time, programmes to ensure gender mainstreaming will be undertaken progressively.

Ethical & Equity Concerns

The Service has previously been viewed severally as undisciplined and lacking ethos inspite of having excellent officers who have served with distinction. Enforcement of core values will ensure adherence to the code of conduct and attitude and behaviour change that are desired in the service.

A change from a reactive organization to a proactive and intelligence-led Service will strongly improve service delivery. This means placing the right people in the right places at the right time; analyzing, detecting and preventing crimes before they happen and using technologies that will enhance modern policing approaches. This will call for effective resourcing of NPS and allocation of resources in crime-prevention priority areas.

Integrated and networked ICT and Data Management Systems

Due to low levels of computerization and automation, the Service has lagged behind in utilisation of technology-based crime management structures and systems, lacked basic data, and sharing of crime records.

During the planned period, NPS will seek to acquire ICT systems and other security technologies, and ensure an effective data management system. ICT is key in transforming policing in Kenya and strengthening investigations, identification and tracing of criminals and enforcement of traffic rules. Installation of CCTV cameras in major towns, networking of police stations, establishment of data and communication centres as well as e-crime prevention platforms are some of the projects that will be implemented in earnest. Establishment of a forensic laboratory is long overdue.

Corruption

Corruption has tarnished the reputation of the otherwise good, hardworking and excellent Service. Various complaints of bribery, mistreatment of officers by their seniors, mishandling of suspects, cases of corruption in recruitments and promotions all serve to spoil the Service. During the planned period there will be development of a robust corruption prevention strategy that will address ethical and service standards and eradicate all cases of systemic corruption. In collaboration with IAU and other oversight bodies, every means will be applied to restore the reputation of the Service to one that properly attracts the accolade of 'world Class Police Service'. Other law enforcement agencies will also play a critical role in fighting corruption.

2.4.9 Linkages with other National Policing Organs

NPS Act establishes clear and strong linkages between the various policing organs right from the National Security Council, Cabinet Secretary, NPSC, IPOA and others. This plan seeks to strengthen strategic linkages with all relevant stakeholders' and key players to ensure effective delivery of policing services.

In principle, the Cabinet Secretary is responsible for provision of Policy direction and ensuring sustainable reforms within the Service. National Police Service Commission is expected to deal with matters related to welfare of Officers and staff which include; recruitment, employment, transfers, remuneration among others.

Independent Policing Oversight Authority is also linked to the NPS for purposes of ensuring accountability of officers, and will operate in collaboration with IAU, which is responsible for investigating all complaints against Police misconduct. It is envisaged that with improved internal and external accountability the Service will deliver quality service and ensure adherence to ethical and professional standards.

The National Security Council on its part is responsible for approval of the number of officers required in the Service in the course of providing and assessing internal security capabilities under national and foreign policing policy and programmes (section 4 & 127 NPS Act 2011).

2.5 Staff and Organization Structure

Policing is a 'people oriented' activity and people are acknowledged to be the most valuable resource in any organization. Therefore appropriate staffing, appointment, posting and monitoring and evaluating performance is critical to achievement of results.

Currently NPS has staffing deficit of 11,000 Uniformed officers arising from variance of authorized staff complement of 86,336 against a total of 75,325 in post (i.e. 41,009 KPS/DCI uniformed officers and APS 34,316). With a fast growing population, there is need to train more officers to meet the internationally recommended Police Population ratio of 1:450, as well as make best use of the existing establishment.

During the planned period, NPS will develop a comprehensive strategic Human Resource Management and Development framework to address primary human resource gaps and concerns. The framework will ensure effective recruitment, training, retention of professional skills within the Service, and ensure productive performance based management that is linked to the overall policing agenda.

Capacity building of serving officers through in-service and on-the-job tailored programmes will continue. This is aimed at enhancing officers capacity and for continued improvement. NPS will establish a Senior Leadership and Command-training programme for senior officers to ensure high quality leadership capable of transforming the NPS. There will be a review of curriculum for the basic training and undertaking of regular training needs and impact assessments. There will also be massive investment in training officers in community policing as the preferred model of policing.

2.6 Vision 2030 Security Sector Institutional Reforms for 2013-2017

According to VDS, the following are projects identified in the 2nd MTP 2013-2017 which are relevant to NPS. Some may not be implemented in the current period however they all point towards ensuring security and safety of the Country;

- Create a new Border Security Force / Unit;
- Enhance the capacity of the National Police Service to train 15,000 police officers annually to comply with the UN recommended police to population ratio of 1:450;
- Establish Coast Guard Service and Kenya National Maritime Security and Safety committee;
- Establish peace building and conflict management structures in all the counties;
- Introduce technology to deal with cattle rustling and other forms of livestock theft;
- Establish a framework for coordination of public and private security stakeholders;
- Upgrade early warning system and disaster management coordination mechanism in the country;
- Develop internal framework for promotion, protection and fulfillment of the right of victims support services;
- Creation of a Metropolitan Police Unit;
- Establishment of a statutory Police Reforms Implementation Commission to coordinate, monitor and supervise the implementation of Police Reforms; and
- Strengthen the new independent Police complaints mechanisms (Internal Affairs Unit - IAU)

2.7 NPS Priority Areas

Aligned from the provisions in Vision 2030 and Ministry of Interior and Government Coordination, Several areas were identified which will be prioritised in the short and the medium term;

- Strengthening of policing policy regime that require development of various policies, guidelines and manuals
- Development of physical facilities
- Application of ICT and modern technologies in policing
- Improvement of staff welfare: housing, salaries and allowances
- Capacity building and enhancement of officers
- Research and development in crime including intelligence led policing, early warning mechanisms and crime trend analysis
- Changing police image & culture that requires strategic communication, branding, culture change, HR and gender mainstreaming among other efforts

All these efforts are expected to lead to an improved safe and secure environment, which is the overall purpose of policing.

2.8 Capacity Assessment to Implement the Strategic Plan

NPS has the requisite capacity to undertake the proposals made towards reforming the Police Service and has established relevant structures to achieve that. The Inspector General has established a Directorate that will be responsible for coordination of reforms. The Directorate will work in liaison with other departments within NPS headquarters' and the Services to design and implement programmes addressing the various relevant areas of service.

It is envisaged that uniformed officers will be deployed in the areas of their core mandate while the non-uniformed officers will continue to provide support in other relevant areas. Due to dearth of technical capacity in some areas, officers with required technical skills will be employed to undertake specialized services and will be provided with appropriate packages for retention and motivation.

Relevant structures to ensure effective implementation of this plan will be established while rationalizing various commands, formations, units and facilitative structures to ensure effective and efficient service delivery. The police modernization strategy will be put in place to ensure a rapid response and sustained fight against crime with particular emphasis on prevention action and rigorous investigation of cases.

Relevant required capacity will be developed using continuous and on-the-job training to equip officers in all areas including emerging crimes like cyber, terrorism, money laundering, human trafficking, white collar and other organised crimes. Benchmarking coupled with exchange and reciprocal programmes will be put in place to ensure the Service achieves the desired “World-class” standards.

Chapter Three

Situational Analysis

3.0 Situational Analysis

It is vital for every organisation to understand the kind of environment it is operating in and what factors may influence success or cause failure of its strategy. The environment is usually affected by factors internal and external to the organisation.

Usually three tools are used to undertake environmental scan or analysis; the PESTLE, SWOT and Stakeholders analysis. Stakeholders analysis helps to identify all the key actors and what they contribute to the success of the strategy. Getting to know their expectations provides a platform for formulation of a strategy that meets those needs.

SWOT (Strengths, Weaknesses, Opportunities and Threats) identifies factors internal and external that would ensure success of the strategy and threats, which must be managed. As a tool it helps to identify strengths to build on, opportunities to take advantage of and weaknesses that ought to be addressed.

On the other hand PESTLE (Political, Economic, Social, Technological, Legal and Environmental) examines the environmental factors that are likely to impact on policing including political, economic and social issues etc.

Below is a summary of SWOT, PESTEL and stakeholders Analysis,. Detailed analysis is attached at the appendix 1.

3.1 SWOT Analysis

Some of the strengths identified that would give NPS head start include;

- A proper legislative framework in the NPS Act 2011 and other legislations allowing for an effective policing role.
- There is goodwill from the citizenry, development partners and government.
- The Service has excellent training and capacity building approaches with relevant institutions in place.

- There is also extensive experience of over 100 years; and
- The Service has international recognition having participated in various peace keeping missions, helped train regional police forces and stood to the policing challenges nationally.

Some of the identified weaknesses and that this strategy will seek to address include;

- Inadequate resources and infrastructure to support effective service delivery due to low budgetary allocations, obsolete and inadequate equipment.
- Low morale among officers caused by comparative low wages, inadequate welfare facilities, unclear career progression or scheme of service among many other HR concerns.
- Lethargy and inadequate HR capacity caused by loss of trained officers to private sector.
- Inadequacy in technical and specialized skills.
- Negative reputation occasioned by endemic corruption, abuse of human rights, excessive use of force, inability to respond to needs, strong negative work culture and attitudes and gross unaccountability.
- Lack of clarity of roles caused by inadequate or unclear policies, poor supervision, poor performance management structure and rapid changes within the security sector among other challenges.

However, the NPS has an opportunity of turning around the Service in the midst of the above challenges and various threats. In particular there are opportunities in;

- Improving Officers welfare and wellbeing;
- Ensuring increased accountability as stipulated in the functions of IAU and IPOA;
- Improving public confidence by dealing with corruption, increasing partnership between police and public through community policing and establishment of County Policing Authorities across the country;

- Improving budgetary and resource mobilisation to address modernization agenda and provision of equipment, retention of officers and improved welfare;
- Harmonise operations through collaborative and integrated systems for efficient and effective service delivery.
- Employing innovative and effective communication strategy

Some of the threats that NPS will have to manage include;

- Negative perception of the Service by the public.
- Rapid and changing crime trends requiring innovative and sophisticated response systems.
- Confusion arising from misunderstanding on police reforms, changed law and legal regimes, establishment of County Policing Authorities and most critically implementation of the Community Policing initiative.
- Resistance to change by officers, increased litigation on flimsy grounds and the negative impact of vetting of police officers.
- Threat of increased crimes occasioned by militarization and radicalization of youth, terrorism and organised crimes and
- Inadequate resources that may lead to inability to finance police operations and modernization efforts.

3.2 PESTLE Analysis

Every organisation operates in an external environment, which is influenced politically, economically, socio-culturally, technologically legally and environmentally. It is therefore vital to determine how these factors are likely to affect the implementation of this plan.

Politically the following issues were identified;

- There will be continued Political instability among the neighboring countries eg Somalia which is likely to escalate cases of insecurity in the country
- Kenya will remain stable but with ethnic tensions which have to be managed to ensure continued security. Political tensions are likely to escalate insecurity.
- The increased demands by devolved government for security and the need for NPS to provide officers to support this, is likely to create competition and political overtones
- At the regional level there is demand for harmonization of policing practice and legislation as well as information sharing building pressure for ICT and other technological requirements for NPS
- Demand for police reforms by public and other stakeholders will continue to provoke adverse feelings, some that will be political.

Economically, the following factors will influence policing;

- Funding of security projects like the CCTV and modernizing of Service will certainly require heavy capital investment.
- There is need to improve on staff welfare, and terms and conditions of service.
- The growing economy coupled with presence of natural resources like oil and other minerals discovered in Kenya are likely to create a robust economy. This will require improved methods of policing to deal with related emerging crimes.

- There is possibility of under-funding due to devolution demand and the fluctuating budget and other global impacts like economic recessions, low GDP and other economic factors
- There is also a general view that unemployment is likely to afflict many kenyans increasing income parity which is likely to spur crimes

Closely linked to economic are social and cultural concerns;

- Negative views about ethnicity will continue to bedevil Kenyan communities heightening crime
- The threat of a breakdown of morals & anti-social behaviour can lead to more criminals and increased crimes
- Negative practices like cattle rustling, alcohol and drug abuse, FGM and other crimes will continue to impact on policing. Some of these are centuries old customs which are difficult to eradicate
- The changing demographics and social stratification will influence crime trends with more youth getting involved and the poor becoming poorer and tending towards crime
- At the global level, Kenya will continue to be influenced by various cultures that are likely to spur activities like terrorism, radicalization, extremism, cybercrime among others
- Corruption is a major social concern which must be addressed to restore credibility back to the police

On the technological front;

- Due to the fast changing technological advancements, there is evolution of crimes, obsolescence of equipment; cybercrimes and other emerging concerns

- Technology will also aid policing; eg use of mobile communication, computers, CCTV cameras, Forensic science etc
- There is demand to automate many aspects of police operations which will make sharing of information and other data, communication and access of police data by the public easier.

NPS has a legal regime that is new and requires time to implement. However, it is going to be influenced by;

- International instruments and provisions which Kenya is a signatory to
- Legislative constraints
- Litigations arising from police actions
- Some legal provisions are inhibitive to policing work
- Increased public awareness and participation

Environmentally;

- Environmental oversight bodies like NEMA will expect NPS to enforce environmental laws some that are difficult to enforce
- There are also many crimes against animals and endangered species
- Human development activities are likely to cause conflicts eg in the informal settlements
- Global warming and other climatic changes are likely to cause famines and droughts, flooding and other ecological challenges
- The officers live and work in un-conducive environment. There is urgent need to address some of the situations like accommodation and housing

3.3 Stakeholders Analysis

A comprehensive stakeholders' analysis was carried out which identified key concerns inform of their expectations and respective expectations by NPS. This analysis helped in identifying interventions aimed at addressing the unearthed expectations.

Among the primary stakeholders analyzed included; The general Kenyan public that expects responsive police services, respect for human rights as police carry out their duties as well as comprehensive reforms within the justice provision sector where police play a key role. While the public have their expectations, the police expect cooperation and support as well as participation of the citizenry preferably in community policing and positive change of attitude towards police.

Another stakeholder is County governments. NPS Act 2011 has placed extensive responsibility for policing work at the County with County Policing Authorities expected to plan, implement and monitor policing work at their respective jurisdictions. Therefore NPS expects increased partnership with Counties and development of relevant plans while the Counties expect provision of resources, increased accountability and compliance to national policing standards.

Government Institutions and other law enforcement agencies, development partners, Civil Society Organizations and media were among other stakeholders identified. A table summarizing the issues is in Appendix I.

Chapter Five

Implementation & Resource Mobilisation

5.1 Key Success Requirements

Comprehensive and effective implementation of this strategic plan will call for five critical requirements;

1. Goodwill of the Executive: The impact of Executive in ensuring funding and operations of the NPS cannot be overemphasized. There is need for the Executive to promote and support Community involvement in security, speak peace across communities, and deter certain crimes within society, among other efforts.
2. Goodwill of the Public in general: The public will be encouraged to take initiatives for their own security to ensure success of Community Policing as a modern philosophy.
3. Commitment by officers to cause change that is anticipated by this plan. This calls for provision of transformational leadership at different levels, attitude change, professionalism, and a commitment to excellence in the basics of policing practice and philosophy. The police officers in Kenya are highly respected when deployed internationally and the same ought to be experienced locally.
4. Resource Planning: As evidenced in the estimated budget, there is need to mobilise resources to support the implementation of reform. To modernize the Service in order to attain dignified status requires intensive resource input.
5. Effective and efficient planning: The changes in policing approach demands professional management that must be reflected in effective and efficient utilisation of financial and human resources, and their deployment in areas of greatest impact.

5.2 Resource Mobilisation

NPS is a state agency and receives government funds from exchequer allocation. There is positive political goodwill and commitment by government to ensure that the Service is built to a level where discharge of modern policing is possible.

The period of this plan will see increased demand for new infrastructure development at the County levels as well as refurbishment of the current facilities. Some facilities like police stations, houses for officers, headquarters for NPS etc. will require major repairs and face lift. Others will require the setting up and networking of technological equipment like computers, cameras, etc.

In this regard, there is necessity to build business cases with clear budgets in order to have increased funding by government, development partners, Private Public Partnerships, and other viable income generating activities within the mandate of the NPS. Most practical is the partnership between National and County Government and the willingness of the County Leadership to provide adequate security infrastructure within areas of their jurisdiction. It is anticipated that resources may be sourced from development partners.

The table below summarises the financing strategy anticipated by NPS;

5.3 Challenges of Implementing Strategic Plans

It has been observed that 90% of strategic plans in most organisations fail due to lack of strategy for implementation. The main factors that may cause this strategic Plan to fail includes:

- Fear to implement the plan.
- Failure to communicate the plan effectively
- Lack of commitment to what is agreed, planned and documented.
- Low resource allocation.
- Lack of implementation capacity among officers.
- Inability to measure performance
- poor Cascade of plans
- Internal resistance to implement the plan among others.

5.4 Strategy for Effective Implementation

To ensure effective implementation of this plan;-

- NPS will adopt a comprehensive implementation programme that will ensure awareness creation to all staff for effective cascading of the plan
- Existing resources will be identified, refocused where appropriate and applied to the strategy for the most effective results. Business cases for extra resources will be prepared and submitted to Government, and collaborating partners
- Annual plans will be developed and reviews carried out to ensure adherence to strategic plan. This is in tandem with ISO and other Quality Management standards and practice.
- Targets will be developed based on the strategic plan and linked to Performance Contracts
- Monitoring of implementation of strategic plan will be the responsibility of Directorate in the IGs office.
- There will be preparation and submission of relevant monthly, quarterly and annual reports based on the various functions and informed by best practice.
- The Strategic plan and relevant targets will be linked to the Performance Contracting targets and synchronized for coherence.

Monitoring and Evaluation

6.0 Monitoring and Evaluation

6.1 Importance of M & E

A project implementation, monitoring and evaluation committee will be established comprised of officers from IG's office and the Services. The purpose of monitoring will be to track progress with a view to ensuring that the Strategic Plan is implemented according to schedule and stipulated timelines. Monitoring, evaluation and reporting will form a critical feature of the implementation of this strategic plan. It will entail routine data collection and analysis. The findings will be used to inform decision-making, including taking corrective actions.

The Monitoring and Evaluation Committee will be expected to develop an M&E framework, and determine the types of indicators and reports necessary to ensure effective M & E.

In addition, the committee will be expected to apply standards provided in National Integrated Monitoring and Evaluation System (NIMES) requirements. Appropriate indicators will be developed based on the key performance indicators and linked to stipulated activities, projects or programmes.

Evaluations will be carried out according to standards of best practice in order to affirm, or if necessary to realign the strategic direction. These will be done at least annually however a mid-term reviews will be carried out. An end of term review will also be carried out on the fifth year to gauge the impact and to identify lessons learnt. The evaluation will inform the next planning cycle.

6.2 Linkage to Performance Contracting

The Vision, Mission, strategic objectives and activities in this plan will be aligned to the National Police Service Performance Contract of all the 5 years to avoid conflict. They will also be aligned to the goals of the Ministry of Government of Interior and Coordination which is responsible for government oversight on policing.

6.3 Data Collection, Analysis and Reporting

A Projects Monitoring & Evaluation Unit will be established to coordinate data collection, analysis and reporting. The unit will work closely with the M&E committee.

The unit will meet on quarterly basis to review/track implementation of projects and report on their status. The unit shall work under the leadership of the Director of Police Reforms and provide secretariat services for the projects M&E committee .

To support M&E detailed annual work plans with clear performance indicators and assigned responsibilities for their achievement will be developed. A monitoring and evaluation framework, with elaborate data and information collection templates and procedures to measure performance, will be developed.

NPS will also acquire and install an Enterprise Resource Management (ERM) programme to support M&E where data will be analysed on a regular basis and reports generated and shared to relevant departments.

6.4 Reporting mechanism

Administration Police Service passout parade

The Inspector General of Police will ensure:

- i. Effective monitoring of the Strategic Plan implementation by holding quarterly review meetings;
- ii. Receiving of progress reports from the DIG-KPS, DIG-APS, Director, DCI and all heads of departments and divisions;
- iii. Signing of annual performance contracts;
- iv. Carrying out of annual work plans, execution of the performance contract targets and annual evaluation on the implementation of the Strategic Plan;
- v. Preparation of annual reports to the Cabinet Secretary;
- vi. Effective sharing of information with stakeholders and the public using websites and other medium of communication;
- vii. Undertaking of mid-term and end-term evaluations respectively;

6.5 Main Risks and Mitigation Strategies
